

Alice in Wonderland

Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, written in 1865 by Charles Lutwidge Dodgson (under the pseudonym Lewis Carroll) has delighted children and adults alike. Originally written for the 10 year old daughter of a friend, Alice Pleasance Liddell, Alice's adventures are full of colourful characters, logic-teasing situations and fun. And of course there's the wonderful poetry, too!

Lewis Carroll's Alice's Adventures in Wonderland opens on a scene of Alice reading over her sister Delilah's shoulder. Alice sees the White Rabbit scurry down a rabbit hole and decides to follow him. In Wonderland, she meets an assortment of strange characters, including the Cheshire Cat, who advises her to attend a tea party thrown by the March Hare. After the Mad Hatter tries to cut her hair, Alice runs away from the tea party. She soon finds herself in a garden where servants are painting roses red to please the Queen of Hearts. Alice is called upon to testify against a tart thief. When Alice admits she knows nothing about the crime, the Queen orders her execution. Alice wakes up at the last minute to realise this was all a dream.

"I wonder if I've been changed in the night? Let me think. Was I the same when I got up this morning? I almost think I can remember feeling a little different. But if I'm not the same, the next question is 'Who in the world am I?' Ah, that's the great puzzle!"
