

THE FARMER AND THE STORK

As you all know - out of all the birds the stork is a truthful and honourable bird. Not at all like the crane which is known for it's lying, cheating and for it's dishonesty.

One day the stork was talking to a flock of cranes and they asked the crane to come with them to a field that had just been planted.

The cranes flew down and began to eat the fresh seed that the farmer had just planted. The stork pleaded with them

"Do not eat that seed - for it does not belong to you!"

At that moment a net flew down from the trees - trapping both the cranes and the honest stork.

The stork tried to explain to the farmer

"It was not me - I am an honest and truthful bird"

The farmer replied

"Then you should choose your friends more carefully"
